Closely

following this, International Relations (57 entries) highlights Pakistan’s diplomatic engagements, regional dynamics, and global political positioning during the month. Economic concerns also received substantial coverage, with Economy (49 entries) and Government (45 entries) ranking among the top themes. Environmental issues (37 entries) and Social Issues (35 entries) further demonstrate growing editorial sensitivity toward climate change, sustainability, and societal challenges affecting the population. Security-related themes such as Terrorism and Extremism (34 entries), Politics (31 entries), and Defence (23 entries) indicate continued concern with national security, political stability, and civil–military affairs. The noticeable presence of Education (24 entries) and Science & Technology (23 entries) reflects increasing recognition of human capital development and technological advancement in national discourse.

Mid-level coverage was observed for topics such as Power Resources and Natural Resources (21 entries), Banking and Finance (19 entries), Biography and Autobiography (16 entries), and Current Issues (15 entries), suggesting a balanced engagement with both policy-driven and reflective editorial themes. Issues related to Women Rights (14 entries) and War, Peace and Security (13 entries) indicate moderate but meaningful attention to gender equity and peacebuilding narratives.

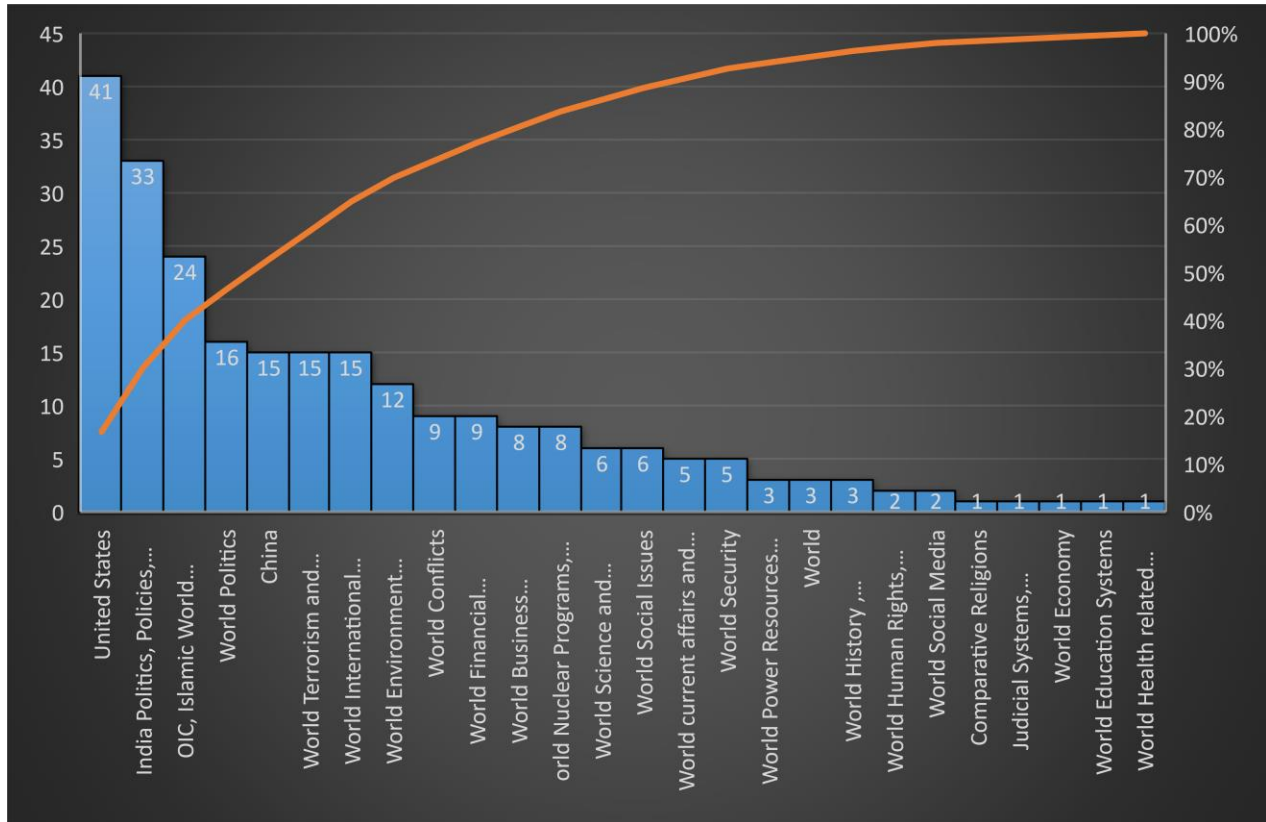

Relatively lower coverage was recorded for Media and Journalism, Health, and Kashmir Azad & Jammu Kashmir (each around 11–12 entries), while cultural, historical, and linguistic topics such as History, Archeology, Geography & Travel and Language, Literature and Rhetoric received limited but consistent attention. Marginal representation was noted for Ethnicity and Sports, each with only one entry, indicating minimal editorial prioritization of these areas during the reporting period.

Overall, the thematic pattern suggests that national editorials in November 2025 were predominantly policy-oriented, with emphasis on legal, political, economic, and security issues, while social, cultural, and sports-related topics received comparatively less attention.

The United States dominated international coverage with 41 entries, reflecting its continued influence on global politics, foreign policy decisions, and international security matters. This was followed by India—Politics, Policies, Conflicts, and Foreign Affairs (33 entries), highlighting BJP extremist mindset and shrinking minorities in India including Muslims. Coverage related to the OIC, Islamic World Conflicts, and West versus Muslim World (24 entries) underscores the prominence of religious, ideological, and geopolitical tensions in international discourse between west and Muslim world. Broader thematic areas such as World Politics (16 entries), China (15 entries), and World International Relations and Foreign Policies (15 entries) further indicate a strong focus on global power shifts, diplomatic engagements, and evolving international alliances.

Moderate attention was given to World Business Opportunities and World Nuclear Programs and Treaties (each 8 entries), indicating editorial interest in global economic prospects as well as nuclear non-proliferation, arms control agreements, and international regulatory frameworks. Topics such as World Science and Technology and World Social Issues (each 6 entries) demonstrate a measured but consistent engagement with innovation, digital transformation, and transnational social challenges.

Relatively lower coverage was observed for general global themes, including World Current Affairs, World Security, and World Power Resources and Natural Resources, suggesting selective rather than comprehensive engagement with these areas. Minimal attention was given to cultural, historical, legal, and social development topics such as World Human Rights,

Comparative Religions, International Judicial Systems, World Education Systems, and World Health Issues, each receiving only one or two entries.

Overall, the international coverage pattern indicates that global editorial discourse during November 2025 was predominantly geopolitics-driven, with a strong concentration on power politics, regional conflicts, security threats, and major state actors.
