Newspapers Editorial Coverage at National Level

The indexed newspaper’s editorial entries provide a comprehensive overview of the topics covered in the Pakistani context, highlighting the diversity of issues addressed across seven major newspapers (Data attached as Annexure – I). Overall, it covers 29 various topics at national level in these seven Pakistani newspapers in English language (Figure 1).

The analysis of national topical coverage across seven major Pakistani newspapers in September 2025 reveals significant editorial focus on environmental issues, which recorded the highest frequency (79 articles). This strong emphasis reflects the aftermath of floods, their socio-economic and environmental impacts, governance responses, and community resilience marking environment as the most dominant concern of the month. The government (52) and international relations (45) topics follow closely, showing active coverage of policy decisions, diplomatic affairs, and state-level administrative developments. Economic issues (42) and defence (33) also received notable attention, indicating media interest in national financial conditions and security matters amid evolving regional dynamics. Education (30) and science & technology (24) topics demonstrate consistent coverage of institutional progress, academic reforms, and technological advancements, while social issues (23) and power and natural resources (23) reflect ongoing debates around infrastructure, energy management, and social welfare. Moderate attention was given to politics (21) and law, legislature, and judiciary (20), suggesting that September’s coverage prioritized environmental and governance matters over purely political discourse. Topics such as health (16), terrorism and extremism (16), and war, peace, and security (17) show continued but lower engagement with national stability and public safety concerns. Subjects like media & journalism (10), business FDI (8), women rights (7), human rights (6), and arts (4) received limited coverage, indicating secondary media interest in cultural and rights-based narratives. Least covered topics includes judicial systems (2) and ethnicity (1) highlight significant underrepresentation of diversity and judicial matters in the national press during this period.

Overall, the data suggest a disaster-driven shift in media priorities, with environmental governance and public policy at the forefront, while softer and cultural topics received minimal attention.

Newspaper Editorial Coverage at Global Level

The international-level coverage across the indexed newspapers provides a detailed insight into the global focus and priorities reflected in the media. Overall, there are 25 various topics have been covered at global level in these seven Pakistani newspapers in English language (Figure 2).

The analysis of global topical coverage across seven Pakistani newspapers in September 2025 reveals that international reporting was strongly influenced by ongoing Middle Eastern conflicts and global power politics. The topic “OIC, Islamic World Conflicts, West vs Muslim World” recorded the highest frequency (41 articles), reflecting the dominant narrative around the Gaza genocide, Israeli aggression, and the perceived inaction of global powers. Coverage emphasized the humanitarian crisis, violations of international law, and the roles of the OIC, Israel, Qatar, and Western alliances, highlighting strong editorial attention to issues of justice and religious identity in global conflicts. The United States (36) and China (33) followed as key areas of interest, representing Pakistan’s media attention to geopolitical rivalries and strategic diplomacy. The U.S. coverage likely focused on foreign policy and Middle East interventions, while China’s stories emphasized economic partnerships, BRI (Belt and Road Initiative), and technological influence. Similarly, India’s politics and conflicts (28) remained a major topic, underlining ongoing regional tensions, border disputes, and India’s foreign policy postures.

Broader categories such as World Politics (16), International Relations (14), and World Environment Protection Strategies (12) reflected continued media engagement with global governance, diplomacy, and environmental sustainability. The inclusion of World Terrorism and Extremism (12) and World Conflicts (12) indicated coverage of international security threats and post-conflict humanitarian concerns. Economic and social dimensions such as World Economy (10), Sports (9), and World Social Issues (5) are appeared moderately, suggesting that economic reporting was overshadowed by conflict-oriented narratives. Meanwhile, coverage of global institutions such as the UN, UNESCO, and nuclear treaties (each with 4 items) showed limited engagement with multilateral diplomacy. Topics like comparative religions (3), world health (2), education (2), and human rights (1) were underrepresented, pointing to a gap in global cultural, developmental, and humanitarian reporting.

Overall, the results depict a conflict-driven and politically centered global news agenda, where Middle Eastern crises, U.S.-China-India geopolitics, and Islamic world affairs dominated the international section. The relatively low representation of health, education, and social justice themes suggests a continued prioritization of security and political narratives over human development and global welfare issues.
